

Who Says Free is Not Worth Anything?

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE...

Arlington, Texas – [September 8, 2007]-ArlingtonParent.com a free resource site for local parents and families to go to and find resources, such as schools, events, dining choices, daycare programs, after school programs, and so much more, is now offering free business listings to help the local community and the entire Metroplex area find resources quickly and easily!

Already a newsworthy site, with over 200,000 hits on a monthly basis, ArlingtonParent.com has decided to make their site a one-stop resource site for everyone to utilize, benefit from and enjoy to its fullest. What does this mean for business owners? It means that they can be listed free of charge on a prominent site, getting their businesses noticed, and heard of which inevitably leads to more sales!

“ArlingtonParent.com was always meant to help the community and surrounding areas by offering readily available resources at a click of a mouse; however, many of the smaller business that could not afford even our modest fees were left out in the dust, having to fend for themselves in the marketing department.” “We want to offer those small business owners a way in which to market themselves, and grow our site by giving families exactly what ArlingtonParent.com is meant to give, and be. A free resource site with a multitude of resources to choose from.” Bianca Landis, Owner, ArlingtonParent.com.

Listing on ArlingtonParent.com will include: A business name, business address, a one-line description, a business telephone number, and a listing in up to two categories. If you would like to list on this site please contact Sales@ArlingtonParent.com.

ArlingtonParent.com is a free resource site for families and parents to go to, to find resources and more.
