Westborough, MA – Kristen Arnold has been creating her exclusive handcrafted Tubby Bundles for over five years. Recently, her ingenious product was chosen by "bachelorette" new mom, Trista Sutter for her Baby Bash. The baby shower hosted by The Hot Moms Club was held on June 16th in Colorado. Arnold's bath time helper was included in the gift bags all in attendance received. "I am tickled Trista selected Tubby Bundles for her event," Arnold said. "I am pleased, but not surprised celebrities are requesting my products," she continued. Arnold says everyone, including the famous and fabulous embrace Tubby Bundles. Patrick Dempsey's new twins received her valuable contribution to baby's bath time too. Tubby Bundles help parents stay dry and keep both hands on her baby during bath time. The plush oversized towel fits comfortably around the neck and ties securely in back. When bath time is over, simply lift baby from tub to your chest and bring the bottom of the towel up to cover baby. The towel's length protects legs from splashes and cushions knees when kneeling tub side.

The A-list crowd receives pricey baby couture, cashmere booties, and sterling silver frills galore. "My motherhood qualifies me to be a 'bathing baby specialist,'" quips Arnold. As an expert, Arnold concludes her soft cotton, functional Tubby Bundle to be a bath time necessity. This remarkably popular baby shower gift is making a splash in million dollar estates and small homes too. Arnold says by definition celebrities are "honored and acclaimed." "I think babies achieve lifetime celebrity status with their parents," Arnold stated.

Several media outlets including US Weekly and Celebrity Baby Blog covered the event.
